RECENT FILMS

A Flooded Future
February this year was the wettest month since records began. A Flooded Future is a 15-minute documentary about the hardest hit communities in rural South Wales. We follow contributors as they continue to pick up the pieces in the aftermath of the floods and hear their struggles as the corona virus pandemic hits a month later. As climate change makes flash flooding like this more frequent and extreme, what does the future hold for people in communities like these?

The Language of Bikes
The inclusivity of cycling spans across ages, bringing people together through a shared passion and joy for the sport, which is shown and felt throughout this intimate film about the importance of community.

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

June 2019 – September 2019

Freelance Assisting, Mother Goose Productions

Working on a Visit Wales Project shooting BTS and assisting with camera work for Mother Goose Production Company. Time management and organisation were key skills on these shoots as the project had quick turnaround dates and took place in various parts of Wales.

July 2017 – August 2017

Freelance Photographer, Beagle Media

Working on a production project for a client of Beagle media shooting stills and assisting with camera work. Based in Lincolnshire over the course of one week I worked as part of a team alongside videographers to capture the clients brief. I was able to run with the creative and produced a mix of landscapes, profiles and product shots.

July 2018

BBC Wales - 'BBC Sesh' Social Media Contributor

Comissioned to film and produce a short video about Tenby, Pembrokeshire for BBC Wales' social media platform BBC Sesh.

February 2017 - March 2017

In-field photographer and volunteer with the Maldives Whale Shark Research Program

My role consisted of photographing the Volunteer Program, Interim Semester Program and Community Outreach Programs whilst also collecting data and analysing research on marine life in the MPA. I had the opportunity to live within the local community and help educate the younger generation about marine conservation. I learnt an incredible amount over the course of four weeks including skills such as improving my photography and filmmaking, communication, organisation and collaboration.

January 2020 - Present

Freelance Digital Creator, ArtTemps

Assigned work through ArtTemps on freelance jobs within the art industries. This work has taught me to be adaptable and given me a varied skill set across a number of fields from photography and videography to admin and event organisation roles.

August 2015 – September 2015

Volunteer with the Maldives Whale Shark Research Program

Helping to collect and analyse baseline data on the marine life in the Marine Protected Area (MPA) in the South Ari Atoll, Maldives.

May 2018 – September 2020

RNLI Beach Lifeguard, Wales

To monitor and advise beach and water users ensuring their own safety and to provide / co-ordinate rescues and assists as and when required. Being an Operational Leader meant I was in charge of the beach, giving me essential organisation and problem solving skills.

May 2015 – May 2019

Barista at Café Vista, Wales

Working in cafes and restaurants has allowed me to become confident around people and dealing with customers, being able to cope with sometimes very demanding work.
