

Family love and happiness are life's first and most important lessons. This deep bond welcomes us into the world and remains an emotion I will never let go of. No matter the distance - whether miles apart or side by side our hearts always stay connected, filled with care and longing for one another. Love you always, my dear family.

- First lesson in life.

